Judge McLean-Crops-Prospects and Resources of Illinois.

SPRINGFIELD, ILLI. JUNE 7, 1843. The United States Court is now in session at this place, holding its sittings in the Representafives Chamber in the Capitol. A great many strangers are in town, drawn here by the session of the Court. The question of the coastitutionality of the two-thirds or valuation law will be brought before the Court during its present term, and much anxiety prevails to learn the decision of Judge McLean. I shall be greatly disappointedif he entertains the opinion that the State possesses the power to throw any such barrier over creditors that our State is in his district, for with his uniformly polite and graceful manners to members of the bar, he unites great ability, with the great destruction of wheat, and the very late olution. and wet season. Many farmers have ploughed uptheir wheat and planted corn, much of which but we hardly see the sun more than once a day. and the weather is so cold that many keep fires. It affords us pleasure to see an increasing conficapitalists could full, oppreciate the resources of the Canal from Peru to Chicago will give an impetus to the trade of the State which will exceed expectation, and it cannot fail to increase very largely the revenue of your State from the Eric Canal. Vast quantities of merchandise destined for Missouri, Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin, which otherwise would have to go by way of New Orleans, will, on the completion of the Canal in this State, be forwarded inland, and transported from New-York at less cost than the insurance alone, when sent by New Orleans, and up the Mississippi; and much trade which is now done in Philadelphia and Baltimore will go to New York .-The people of the State and the city of New York should feel a deep interest in the completion of so much importance to them as this Canal. It is to us: to be hoped that the day is not far distant when we shall see it in operation, and the fine lands

The Convention of Whig Delegates from the several Counties composing the Fourth Congres. greatest good feeling prevailed in the Convention. Simon Kinney, of Bureau County, presided .-Giles Spring, of Cook County, and J. L. Dickey, of La Salle County, were the candidates for nommation. An informal balloting resulted as follows: Mr. Spring received 28 votes, and Mr. Dickey received 17 votes; and upon the motion of one of Mr. Dickey's friends, GILES SPRING was declared duly nominated with the greatest manimity. Mr. Spring is a man of ability and character, and has fought the battles of the Whigs manfully for the last ten years in this his adopted State. He is well known throughout the District, (which is a very extended one,) and is one of the most popular men in Northern Illinois.

Although the Loco-Foco majority in this District is about a thousand, we feel confident of success. There is a great deal of enthusiasm in the Whig ranks, and a strong opposition in his own party to the nominee of the Loco-Focos, John Wentworth. The Whigs are determined to defeat their opponents, and you will say they have your best wishes.

Crops in Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa. Correspondence of The Tribune.

CHICAGO, L.L., June 10th, 1813. From the interior of the State we learn that the wheat crop will be very short, falling probably inside of half a crop-but from the northern part of the State, Wisconsin and Iowa, we are informed that the wheat is very fine and promises an excellent yield; it now brings in our market, 80 cents, and flour, $4. You will perceive by the St. Louis quotations, that they are paying as much as we are for wheat and more for flour, it having brought $4.25 there, the early part of this week. In the June number of Hunt's Merchants' Magazine, a writer in giving Missouri statistics, infers that when the Illinois Canal is completed, that St. Louis will even trade with Michigan-and he speaks of coffee and cigars having been purchased in St. Louis for Chicagosuch might have been the case once. If however, the Canal was now completed, it would take but a small advance to induce us to ship flour to St. Louis-but it will be a long time before we shall become dependent upon that city for supplies. Our city continues to improve rapidly, several new buildings are in progress of Bunker Hill-A Veteran Survivor. GREENBUSH, June 15, 1813.

This is an hallowed purpose. The coming 17th brilliancy of nature's coloring. He then describes. is the sunset hour of the day of the Revolution. It will be the last-the final-the farewell gathering of those who were actors, living, moving, fearless actors in the struggle and the strife, and these are to assemble there to meet no more "as of the earth-earthly." Among the crowd who to-day take their departure for Boston, it was my very great good fortune to find a veteran, who will be, I doubt not, one of, if not the most interesting-most welcome guests of Bostonian hospitality, Josian CLEAVELAND, Ensign under the immediate command of Putnam, (mark that, ye reviling critics who are waging an unholy crusade against the fame of old Put,) at Bunker Hill, and Captain at the siege and capitulation of Yorktown. At ninety years of age, with a mind unclouded and a step firm and commanding, he has thus far the process of the Federal Court. Judge McLean traveled night and day from the home of his old is looking very well. It is fortunate for Eastern age, on the banks of the Susquehanna, at Owego, and very nigh to that sweet cottage, Glen Mary, which was once the residence of N. P. Willis. > "A negro, recently escaped from New Orleans, made his appearance in the village of Alexandria, in Genesce county, New-York. He was introduced by a deacon of the church to the principal inhabitants of the village, and at their request, on a Sunday evening in April last, in the village church, "told his experience" of slavery in Mongomery, Mobile and New Orleans. The following startling statements made a part of his story. He was in Mobile during the summer of 1820, that saveners so, destructive through disease and of 1839, that summer so destructive through disease and

He, with many others, about 190 in number, held secret meetings out of the city, to consult upon the best method of effecting their freedom. They ascertained that there was a sonal District met at Juliet, Will County, on the 25th ult. Fifteen of the seventeen Counties composing the District were represented, and the and to murder wherever any resistance was shown. This scheme was to be carried into effect at midnight. Before, however, the meditated period arrived, they were informed by some Abolitionists residing in the city that if they succeeded in this attempt, they would afterward be taken by the authorities of other places. The scheme, upon this representation, was consequently abandoned. They then determined to burn the city.

The conflagration was to be a general one, and the time set was 12 o'clack at night, but some within the city com-set was 12 o'clock at night, but some within the city com-menced the work at 8 o'clock in the evening, and thus frustrated the intended purpose of the greater number. He represented himself as one of the leaders among them. This fellow gave his name at the meeting, named his wife and children here, where they resided, whom he had worked with, the name of his master, the period he left here, and the period he left New-Orleans. It is well authenticated that this strange story was told in the manner described, and this history of himself has been ascertained by the writer to be strictly true.

It is well known that the great fire commenced between 7 and S o'clock-that during the time the Mansion House was burning, the building of Mr. Emanuel, the Alabama Hotel, a shed near the fish market, and, toward evening, a hou o high up in Dauphin street, were fired, and at half-past six o'clock that evening, a carpenter's shop on Church street, near the American Theatre, was set on fire, and the progress of the flames destroyed every thing upon that square. Our citizens were disturbed by the cries of fire from every quarter during the day. That incendiaries were at work was never doubted, but who they were has never been fully ascerained. The consternation of that period few can ever forget. Can that story be true as told in Genesee county? Are there abolitionists amongst us? Is this correspondent of the Olive Branch one? Is our security and safety during the summer months a sound or a fancied one? As questions of importance in this community, I leave to the public to judge if the subject of this communication is worthy of their con-sideration, reserving to myself further remarks according to the estimate they may put upon the matter.

CESTER RAILROAD.—The quantity of merchandise which was transported on the Boston and Worcester Railroad during the six months ending on the 31st of May last, was 32, 723 tons 6 cwt.; of which 19,231 tons 10 cwt. consisted of merchandise transported upwards from Boston, and 13,491 tons 16 cwt. of merchandise brought to Boston. > "I cannot refrain from mentioning a metamorphose which I was happy enough to witness through the agency of our instrument. I had placed the larvæ of a May Fly under the action of 3,000,000 powers, which gave a representation on the screen 12 feet long. While watching the movements of its breathing apparatus, I perceived the head to be leaving the body, or rather drawing another body with it from within the one I was examining. In a few seconds four legs were thrown out (as one would throw out the frame of an umbrella) and floated on the surface of the water-the insect now measured 20 feet, and a more singular nondescript cannot be imagined than was presented in this half wrial, half aquatic piece of existence. Extending from a few feet back of the head to the extremity of the body, as far as it had drawn out, appeared on either side what seemed an ill-furled sail, which by an effort of the insect was immediately flung to the breeze-and lo! a stupendous pair of wings was added to the scene. The old envelope floated away and before me fluttered a thing of air !-The entire time, from the larvæ state swimming in my receiver till it floated away on wings, did not exceed three minutes. I never, in the wildest flight of imagination, conjured up a sight so amazing as this. "There are other peculiarities about our instrument which I am not at liberty to mention at present. I will state, however, that in the arrangement and combination of lenses and speculie, we have, in many instances, worked directly opposite to the fundamental laws that have been supposed to govern optics. ASTRONOMY .- A correspondent of a Cincinnati paper asserts that a large fiery-looking planet, to be seen in the first part of the night, is not Mars but Jupiter, and that the color is owing to some change that has come over our atmosphere.

The correspondent is, we suspect, better read in the classics than in mixed mathematics, and understands mythology better than astronomy.-The truth is that Jupiter, for the last few thousand years, has been as well behaved as any of the Olympian powers; and we have on record no recent instances of his improprieties. He was, in his vounger days, rather given to masquerading, and was several times detected in situations which it might be thought disrespectful to his former position to mention. He went through almost every sign of the zodiac, from Virgo to Taurus, and in every one showed himself more of a rowdy than a god. And it is probable these things were in the mind of the gentleman of Ohio. But it is refreshing to know that there has been a great reformation in Olympus. Juno has become modest and retiring, and keeps company with Pallas. Vesta, and Ceres, one quite out of public gaze .- Mercury, that was wont to tell more lies than all the rest of the family, has gone into retirement, says nothing, and has nothing said of him. Venus has borrowed the crescent of Diana, and Mars has left off his pugnacious habits, but like other old warriors, he likes to come close and show himself.

PEOPLE. PRINCIPLES OF POLITICAL ECONOMY, Or the Laws of the Formation of National Wealth,

Developed by means of the Christian Law of Government; being the substance of a case delivered to the Hand-loom Weavers' Commission. BY WILLIAM ATKINSON.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION, Treating of the present state of the Science of Political Economy, and the Adaptation of its Principles to the Condition of our own Country and the upbuilding of its Prosperity. BY HORACE GREELEY.

The work of Mr. ATKINSON is one of the most instructive and admirable that has yet appeared on the important and difficult subject of Political Economy-difficult, not so much in its essence or in the nature of its laws as in the application of those laws to the dissimilar, complicated, varying circumstances of different nations and periods. The laws educed by Mr. Atkinson are so just, so clear, so vital, and yet so strangely overlooked by those who arrogate to themselves the title of the Political Economists in our day, and who resolve all Political Economic Science into doing nothing-of whose universe Somnus is God-and who elevate the maxim of the counter, 'Buy where you can cheapest' to the summit of attainable wisdom and statesmanship. In touching tribute to the incmory of the Empress their eyes the cheapest possible production-coin being the Josephine-the best Prime Minister, as he hap- unerring standard-is the great end of human effort; and he who is outstripped in the headlong race is doomed to ruin and starvation by the law of envious strife and depressing competition, which they blasphemously represent as the order of Providence! These are the views put forth by the Political Economists enthroned in our Colleges and Senates, as liberal and enlightened !- at least, these are the inevitable results from those views. It was needed that the spacious fallacies put forth by these teachers should be scrutinized and confuted, and this has been done in a masterly manner by line of conduct which he—a youth and a stranger of Mr. Atkinson. As an elementary treatise on Political Economy—as a refutation of the doctrines of 'Free Trade' theory in the great city of Paris—would do well to purnothing equal to his work has ever appeared on either rists—nothing equal to his work has ever appeared on either side of the Atlantic. To the friends of American Industry, therefore, and to all who regard the trade, the skill or experience of the Working Man as his Property, his means of livelihood, in the possession of which Government is bound to secure and sustain him precisely as it does the possessor of other Property—that is, until and unless some overruling public necessity or manifest public advantages demand a contrary course—to all who would give stability, permanence, activity and prosperity to the great Industrial Interests of the Country, we heartily commend this work, trusting that they will aid us to secure for ita wide and general perusal.

SANDS'S SARSAPARILLA.

SANDS'S SARSAPARILLA.

THIS MEDICINE stands unrivalled, (based as it is on its intrinsic merits,) for the removal and radical cure of those diseases to which it is peculiarly adapted. Being entirely regrable, and composed of the choicest selection of ingredients, which act in consonance with the laws that zovern the animal economy, the system is enabled to throw off disease, take on a healthy action, and the powers of nature resums their natural functions. Thousands can, and have, testified to its efficacy in removing various chronic constitutional diseases, originating in an unhealthy or depraved state of the blood and other fluids, scrofula or enlargement of the glands, rheumatism and lumbago, salt rheum, ring worm, barber's itch, eczema and other similar affections, are safely and effectually cured by its use, but as by the "chosen few," this is sometimes termed quackery, the subject requires a passing remark. "The question, what is quackery and who is a quack, is of serious moment, and as the preservation of health is too important to be trifled with, it is of the greatest consequence where disease invades our physical frame, to take prompt and where disease invades our physical frame, to take prompt and efficient measures to repel the attack. Whether he who stands efficient measures to repel the attack. Whether he who stands on his reserved rights, and prescribes ad libitum: the most powerful scents, including some of the most virulent poisons, and in case of a fatal termination, simply says that the patient died of —, or he who by laborious and long continued investigation, draws forth from the arcana of nature hidden stores of useful knowledge and applies it to the benefit of suffering humanity, risking his own reputation in the result, is most entitled to public confidence, the afflicted can determine it is the mark of a weak and prejudiced mind, to rejectany thing as false because it does not agree with its own preconceived notions; but it is evidence of a noble and generou mind to

Still further proof of the superior value and emercency of Sands' Sarsaparilla:

New-York, April 28th, 1843.

Messrs, Sands: Gentlemen—Although it may be considered unnecessary for me to add another proof to the justly deserved celebrity of your invaluable preparation of Sarsaparilla, yet for the benefit of my fellow men, I fael bound to proclaim the fact: From being a most helpless cripple, with a disease of the lower extremities, which spread over the legs, instep, and feet, distressing me so much, as to render life almost miserable. I am now quite recovered and entirely by the use of your Sarsaparilla. For two years I was unable to wear a shoe, and the right foot and ancle were very much swollen—which at times discharged water and pus freely, accompanied with violent itching—and burning sensations, so as to deprive me of all rest. I gave up in despair, and supposcompanied with violent tiching—and burning sensations, so as to deprive me of all rest. I gave up in despair, and suppose ed amputation would be necessary; but hearing of great cures made by your Sarsaparilla, I resolved to make another effect to regain my health—and now under the blessing of a kind Providence. I am thankful to say I am well. With feelings of graditude to you and thankfulness to the giver of all good, for thus blessing the means. I am, your friend,

This is to certify that James McConnell called on me and exhibited his foot and leg, and stated, that by the use of eleven bottles of Sands's Sarsaparital, a perfect cure had been effected. With feelings of the warmest gratitude to Messrs. Sands in thus being instrumental under Divine Providence, in curing and restoring him to health, requests me to give this certificate.
